

Northern Corn Rootworm

Corn planting time is quickly approaching and a great deal of concern has been directed to the rootworm problem in Bruce and Huron.

The commercial seed corn sold today is usually treated with a fungicide. Some is also treated with insecticide to control stored insects. But you should be sure that your seed corn is treated with Diazinon and Lindane to control maggots and wireworm. Packages of DLTC are readily available from any seed corn dealer for less than $1.00. According to figures stated by the Department of Agriculture, approximately 20% of this year's corn crop should be treated for corn rootworm in this area.

You first must recognize that the field requires special attention or possibly treating with an insecticide. To do this you follow one of the following: check the previous year, in July dig up 10 or more plants and examine roots for larva. Second, when harvesting, if 10% of crop has bowed or bent stalks, this usually indicates need for control the following year.

If you can't rotate your crop which is the best method, due to residue carryover, you should consult the 1976 field crop recommendation pub. 296 for recommended levels of insecticide. Remember these insecticides are

Hiking In The Maitland Valley

Rocky is excited. It is now officially spring and he is thinking of all the challenging and exciting activities which await him in the outdoor world of the Maitland River watershed in the spring and summer of 1976.

Hiking is one of Rocky's favourite activities. However, until very recently, there were no well developed hiking trails in the watershed. In the summer of 1974 that situation began to change.

At that time a group of seven young people working under the Junior Conservationist Award Program for the M.V.C.A., undertook a study of the river valley from the Falls Reserve Conservation Area to the Wawanosh Valley Conservation area. The study, when completed, demonstrated that a good scenic, and easy to maintain hiking trail could be built along the Maitland River. The trail would pass over a variety of topography, cliffs, valleys and plains. There would also be a wide variety of vegetation so the hiker can explore everything from swamps to hardwood forests the study stated.

That study report printed by the Conservation Authorities Branch of the Ministry of Natural Resources was read by a group of interested watershed residents. These people had thought for many years that the construction of a Maitland River trail was necessary and possible. The study, plus additional encouragement from the Maitland Valley Conservation Authority and the Ministry of Natural Resources were sufficient to make these people realize that the time was ripe for starting the trail.

So, in July of 1975, the Maitland Trail Association was formed with the goal to construct a trails system for hiking, snowshoeing, nature study and cross country skiing. This Association acted very quickly and by November of 1975 had published its Plans for Establishing and Maintaining a Maitland River Trails System. Also, by the end of 1975 the first section of this trail running from Saltford to Benmiller had been completed.

Presently, the small but dedicated membership is growing in size and is actively developing plans for the building of the next section of the trail from Benmiller to the Wawanosh Valley Conservation Area for the spring, summer and fall of 1976. The Association's long range plan calls for the Maitland Trails System to link up with the Grand River system and the Bruce Trail. It will then be an important part of a well developed and maintained province wide system of trails.

Rocky thinks that this is very exciting. Membership in the Association is open to anyone who is old enough to walk. An entire family may join for a mere five dollars. Just think of what fun it would be to be able to walk all the way across this big province of Ontario on a trail, part of which you helped to build.

Next time, Rocky will tell you more about the enjoyable and healthy activity of hiking.

If you would like further information on any of Rocky's columns write to the M.V.C.A. office at Box 5, Wroxeter or phone 335-3557.
